Valuable information on hunting in Oklahoma, where to look for licensing information, a handy reference to the more than 55 ranches and farms offering lodges, cabins or guided hunts and more, and a fold-out map, are just some of what you'll find in this not-so-little guide.

Packed with everything you need to make your hunting adventure in Oklahoma a memorable experience, if by some chance you don't find what you're looking for here, head to TravelOK.com, agritourism.TravelOK.com or wildlifedepartment.com and fill your pack with everything you wanted to know about hunting in Oklahoma.

A Hunting You Will Go.

Oklahoma's rolling hills, prairies, canyons and valleys are the perfect setting for superb hunting adventures. Dating back to pre-historic times when aboriginal American Indians roamed the area's verdant lands teeming with game, the history of hunting is strong in Oklahoma.

After the relocation of the Five Civilized Tribes in the mid-1800s and subsequent opening of the Oklahoma and Indian Territories in the late 1880s, leaders recognized the need for protecting and preserving natural wildlife populations. Game and fish laws passed in 1885, and by 1909, a mere two years after statehood, the Game & Fish Department was established and the first hunting license issued. In ensuing years, the Oklahoma Department of Wildlife Conservation, businesses and non-profit organizations have worked together managing the state's fish, game and wildlife, as well as making conservation, protection of outdoor resources, and a tradition of quality, the cornerstones of preserving Oklahoma's abundant wildlife for the enjoyment of all, now and in generations to come.

Today, alongside the opportunity to walk and explore some of the most unique and varied topography in the nation, a diverse range of hunting awaits you. Quail, turkey, whitetail deer, wild hogs, predators and more make their home under Oklahoma's big skies and wide-open country. You're on track for hunting treks filled with the challenges you crave and enough memorable moments to last until your next Oklahoma hunt.

Licensed To Hunt.

The Oklahoma Department of Wildlife Conservation is the government agency charged with managing fish and game species and issuing hunting and fishing licenses across the state. All fees from hunting and fishing licenses go toward wildlife conservation in Oklahoma. More than 800 license dealers are spread across the state to make it easy, fast and simple to pick up a license. For complete details go to www.wildlifedepartment.com; certain licenses are also available online or by calling 1.800.949.6392.
