

What are the benefits to participating employers?

- ✦ Recognition for leadership in developing disability employment practices.
- ✦ Access to a network of potential employees who typically stay on the job longer, reducing personnel turnover.
- ✦ Networking connections with other local businesses.

Most applicants are thrown into the job search, resume and interview process with little or no training. Oklahoma Department of Rehabilitation Services and the Business Advisory Council are changing that. We provide job ready clients an opportunity to experience the interview process and resume writing before the application actually goes in.

DRS created the Business Advisory Council to assist our clients, who are people with disabilities, to sell their abilities in the best possible light so their chances of gaining employment improve.

We need you to:

- ✦ Share your insight on what makes a good resume.
- ✦ Coach individuals on the interview process.
- ✦ Give to a community of people who can benefit from your wisdom and become productive members of the workforce, if given the chance.

Comprised of Oklahoma business men and women from the private sector, the council meets quarterly to advise DRS on current and future trends for hiring personnel in Oklahoma and conducts pre-employment interviews and job readiness forums.

We need your insight and advice to grow the council to help these clients achieve their employment goals.

As a council member you will help with the development of the most current and crucial employment skills that are in demand today.
