

Figure 3. Robbers Cave: the floor is a bedding plane that dips from right to left; the steep slope on the left side represents a fault plane; the roof is irregular because of weathering and slumping. Erosion probably began along the junction of the bedding plane and the fault plane and was enlarged by weathering, slumping, and erosion.